Panel for Educational Policy Resolution Regarding the Adoption and Enforcement of a Chancellor’s Regulation to Govern Military Recruitment Activities in New York City Public High Schools

WHEREAS, the federal No Child Left Behind Act (NCLB) of 2001 granted military recruiters unprecedented physical access to public high school students and access to their personal directory information; and

WHEREAS, the United States military has increased its efforts to recruit high school students to meet wartime enlistment quotas; and

WHEREAS, Manhattan Borough President Scott M. Stringer and the New York Civil Liberties Union surveyed over 1,000 students in 2007 at selected high schools and found that:

- More than one in five respondents (21%) reported the use of class time by military recruiters, a violation of Department of Education guidelines. Among high school seniors, an even greater proportion—over one-quarter of students surveyed—reported military recruiter use of class time.
- Two in five respondents (40%) reported that they did not receive a military recruitment opt-out form at the beginning of the 2006-2007 academic year, a violation of Department of Education guidelines.
- Nearly one in five respondents (18%) did not believe anyone at their school could properly advise them of the risks and benefits of military enlistment.
- Nearly half of respondents (45%) reported that they did not know to whom they could report military recruiter misconduct; and

WHEREAS, in September 2008, the Department of Education revised its annual Principals’ Directive on military recruitment to provide centralized reporting of student directory information to the military, thereby significantly increasing the efficiency with which the military can obtain New York City student directory information; and

WHEREAS, in November 2008, 27 federal, state, and city elected officials from New York sent a letter to the Chancellor raising serious concerns about the adoption of the revised Directive, calling for a 30-day public notice and comment period on the Directive’s provisions, and setting out a list of detailed recommendations for the protection of New York City students against aggressive recruitment activities; and

WHEREAS, the Panel for Educational Policy is responsible for advising the Chancellor on matters of policy affecting the welfare of the city school district and its pupils; so

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Panel for Educational Policy recommends that the Chancellor suspend the 2008 Principals’ Directive on military recruitment, including all deadlines included therein, and immediately commence a 30-day public notice and comment period on the regulation; and be it
RESOLVED, that the Panel for Educational Policy recommends that the Chancellor adopt in its regulations the protections suggested in the aforementioned letter from 27 elected officials, including:

- The development of a well-publicized and centralized opt-out procedure designed to ensure that every student receives an opt-out form at the beginning of each school year and is provided adequate guidance and time to complete and submit the form.
- The development and enforcement of strict regulations on physical access to schools by recruiters, and informing students and parents of these restrictions.
- The designation and training of a staff person or persons at each high school on issues of military recruitment; this designee should be prepared to assist students in filling out and submitting opt-out forms, navigating and interpreting information provided by military recruiters, receiving complaints about the conduct of military recruiters, and making informed decisions about their future upon graduation from high school.
- A citywide policy instructing all schools that administer the ASVAB (Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery) exam to choose Option 8, the information release option that provides the greatest protection for student information. The DOE should monitor and make publicly available which schools are administering the ASVAB exam.
- The development of an effective and well-publicized grievance procedure for the reporting and tracking of recruiter misconduct, and make complaints available to the public (in a manner that complies with FERPA).

RESOLVED, that the Panel for Educational Policy recommends that the Chancellor discontinue subsidizing the federal government's recruiting practices by spending Department of Education funds for the recruitment of students; all costs should be borne by the Department of Defense.

Overview of the NYC Board of Standards and Appeals

Ms. Meenakshi Srinivasan, Chair of the Board of Standards and Appeals (BSA), gave a presentation on the function of the board. The BSA is body independent from the Department of Buildings and Department of City Planning that grants relief from the zoning code for projects on a case by case basis. The BSA reviews three main types of applications: appeals, special permits, and variance applications. Community boards weigh in on variance applications which require the applicant to prove a hardship to change the zoning. The role of community boards in the public review process is to advise the BSA and recommend conditions for the applicant. This is not time sensitive like ULURP. Community boards are invited to attend Tuesday public hearings where open applications are discussed.

New Youth Initiative

Mr. Chester Arthur from Transform America presented on their Youth Council model. Transform America worked with Councilmember Mark Viverito on creating a Youth Council in District 8 and would like to replicate the model throughout the borough. The Youth Council is an after-school program that serves high school students. The curriculum components include lessons on community activism, policy making, electoral participation and college preparation.
Transform America’s Youth Councils help to give community boards and council members a youth perspective of public policy and strengthens the community. They also groom future community leaders by helping to make young people aware of local issues and charging them with making a difference. To start a youth council, Transform America asks that the sponsoring community board or council member’s office have a staff member meet with the youth once a month, provide or assist in obtaining space for weekly meetings, and identify community members to serve as facilitators.

On January 30 a Free Tax Preparation event will be held in the Adam Clayton Powell State Office Building to help people claim EITC and other public benefits.

Report on Borough Board Budget Priorities, Susannah Vickers

The Mayor’s preliminary budget date has been pushed back from January 15 to January 24, 2009. Responses to the budget from community boards are due February 27, 2009. The Borough Board will hold budget hearings to solicit input from around the borough. The hearings will take place on February 23 at the Harlem State Office Building and on January 24 at 1 Centre Street. All five borough presidents will discuss citywide budget priorities on February 2 and the Borough Board’s budget priorities report is due March 10, 2009. The community board annual reports should also be completed by March 10.

Communications & Reports

Community Board 1

Notify NYC has started and will go citywide after this pilot project is complete. Building code has been revamped as a result of 130 Liberty Street. The construction bust is causing unfinished construction projects and empty lots all over the district.

Community Board 2
PlaNYC is creating more public space in the district. The community board is fighting the MTA to save the M8 cross-town bus.

Community Board 3
There are 25 members who have signed on to the Chinatown working group, which also includes CB 1 and CB 2. The Chatham Square Redesign Task Force met last week and is working with traffic analysts and schools to give the City input on the project. The City has committed to a construction command center (in the LMCCC model) for South of Houston.

Community Board 4
600 new affordable housing units were announced for 10th and 11th Avenues. A hearing is coming up on the 11th Avenue rezoning. CB 4 is holding a hearing on the plight of nonprofit theaters with CBs 1-5 on February 16th.

Community Board 5
CB 5 held a “New Schools Now” forum at FIT. The CB is trying to create more consistency with public notification meeting policy.

Community Board 6
CB 6 is concerned that mayoral agencies ask for comments on projects after deadlines have passed.

Community Board 7
CB 7 has issued their response to the Riverside South draft scope of work for environmental impact statement. Two meetings were held with over 200 people at each. Of particular concern is that the plan only includes envelopes not actual building designs. 400 people attended a meeting on the issue. CB 7 issued a resolution opposing DOE’s capital plan.

Community Board 8
CB 8 wants a down-zoning of mid-block FAR from 5.1 to 4.0 to make the UES consistent with the zoning in the rest of the borough.

Community Board 9
Former board chair Jordi Reyes-Montblanc passed away on December 18, 2008. There will be a memorial service at St. John’s the Divine in early February and a brief tribute at the January 15 board meeting. All are welcome to submit remarks for a booklet that will be given to Jordi’s family.

Community Board 10
The January 22 land use committee meeting will serve as a “Land Use 101” presentation for local residents. On February 23 there will be a summit at the Schomburg Library on the future of economic development in northern Manhattan. CB 10 has begun a partnership with the U.K. to discuss issues as they relate to urban areas. Thanks to Lolita Jackson at CAU for facilitating this.

Community Board 11
CB 11 is organizing an orientation for new members. The CB is looking forward to Hunter College School of Social Work relocating to East Harlem. There is a movement to revitalize the Victoria Theater.

The meeting adjourned at 11:02 a.m.
