Manhattan DA's Office Reported: Manhattan District Attorney Cyrus R. Vance, Jr., announced the citywide expansion of "Saturday Night Lights" (SNL), the Office's signature youth violence prevention program. The Manhattan D.A.'s Office is investing $1.4 million seized in investigations against major banks to expand SNL citywide. The expansion adds eight SNL sites in Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx, and Staten Island, as well additional sites in Manhattan. Programming at most sites have begun.

Manhattan Borough President Gale A. Brewer stated “The Saturday Night Lights program is a great way to build trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve. I thank D.A. Vance for continuing to invest in such an important resource.”

Saturday Night Lights

Saturday Night Lights is a youth development program that activates community spaces, connects youth to resources, and builds trust between law enforcement and communities. Founded in 2011 by District Attorney Vance, SNL unlocks underutilized gyms and recreational facilities on Saturday nights – when youth violence has historically been highest – with free, high-quality sports, dance, and fitness programming. It is estimated that SNL has already served more than 12,000 young people across New York City.

Citywide Expansion

Since its creation, Saturday Night Lights has expanded from a basketball program operating at a single site in West Harlem to a network of 20 sites offering basketball, soccer, dance, and flag football across the five boroughs. Now, D.A. Vance is investing $1.4 million seized in investigations against major banks to expand SNL citywide. With today’s announcement, SNL is now operating at the following locations:

Manhattan:

- Henry Street Settlement’s Boys and Girls Republic (888 East 6th Street)
- Harvey Milk High School (2 Astor Place)

DEP Reported (See Stats):

The New York City Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) recently proposed a 2.31 percent increase in Fiscal Year 2020 (FY20) water rate to the New York City Water Board. The proposed rate would keep the cost of water in New York City well below the national average. Since Mayor de Blasio made the commitment to shrink, then eliminate, the rental payment from the water system, $792 million of ratepayer funds have stayed in the system, helping to fund critical programs while keeping rates low for property owners and businesses. The proposed rate increase is subject to review and approval by the Water Board.

The proposal also maintains existing affordability programs for low-income homeowners and multi-family housing properties that are expected to benefit as many as 60,000 customers and 40,000 units, respectively. In addition, the proposal recommends freezing the minimum charge at $1.27 per day for the sixth consecutive year for those customers who use fewer than 92 gallons per day.

What the Proposed Rate Would Mean for an Average Customer - If the 2.31% water rate increase is adopted by the Board:

- A typical single-family homeowner will see an increase from $945/year to $967/year for water and sewer bills—an increase of $1.82/month (based on an average consumption of 70,000 gallons of water per year).
- A typical multi-family unit with metered billing will see an increase from $702/year/unit to $718/year/unit—an increase of $1.35/month (based on an average consumption of 52,000 gallons of water per year).

DOT Reported: DOT, and BroSis kicked-off the grand of the Johnny Hartman Plaza this Plaza will also include BroSis' farmers market, which is open every Wednesday at the plaza.

- Resurfacing season has concluded;

The Greater New York Region of the American Red Cross reported: More than three dozen employees and volunteers from the Greater New York area are supporting relief efforts, including 11 members of our Disaster Assistance and Response Team (DART) who were recently deployed for the Carolinas. DART is a 30-year partnership between the Red Cross and FDNY where active and retired firefighters deploy with the Red Cross in times of disaster.

The storm is still packing a powerful punch along the East Coast with sustained winds of 90 mph. Hurricane and tropical storm warnings are up from North Carolina to Delaware. Red Cross shelters are open to everyone in need, regardless of race, religion, gender identity, sexual orientation or citizenship status. All disaster assistance is free. We don't require people to show any kind of identification to enter a shelter — just their name and pre-disaster address.

Sympathy goes out to families in the Bahamas dealing with the catastrophic impacts of Hurricane Dorian. Initial aerial assessments show widespread devastation to the islands — that's everything from destroyed homes to contaminated water sources.

Before the hurricane struck the islands, the Bahamas Red Cross prepositioned supplies for 1,000 people and has mobilized 200 volunteers. On Thursday, the International Federation of the Red Cross (IFRC) sent 38 tons of materiel including warehouse tents, jerrycans, tarpaulins, hygiene kits, shelter toolkits, plastic buckets, blankets and kitchen sets. According to national and regional estimates, approximately 76,000 people – the vast majority of residents on the two islands – have been affected by Hurricane Dorian.

Dept. of Homeless Services Reported: As 1.1 million New York City students head back to school next week, it is important to remember that 1 in 10 students experience homelessness every year, and as a result face unique educational challenge. Since 2010, over 220,000 students experienced housing instability while enrolled in New York City public schools. In fact, the number of homeless students increased 56% between the 2010–11 and 2016–17 school years. Here are seven things you need to know about NYC's homeless students.

Homelessness disproportionately affects young students. Half (54%) of all homeless students were in elementary school.

Homeless students are more likely to experience disruptions to their education. These students were 3x as likely to transfer schools mid-year as their housed peers (21% vs. 7%) and more than 1.5x as likely to be chronically absent (36% vs. 21%). When students cannot attend school regularly or maintain continuity in their learning, they are more likely to fall behind academically and not graduate on time with their class.

Many homeless students face language barriers. English Language Learners (ELLs) are overrepresented among the City's homeless students. One in four students who experienced housing instability were ELLs (25%). This is almost 2x the rate of housed students (14%). For these students, timely access to educational supports such as ELL programs is key.

Homelessness is an ongoing experience. Many students experience multiple episodes of homelessness. The majority of all students identified as homeless had experienced it at least one other time since 2010 and over 8,000 were identified as homeless for half of their school lives—7 years in a row.

Homelessness has a lasting effect on students. Not only did homeless students face recurring or extended episodes of homelessness, once they moved to permanent housing, they continued to experience chronic absenteeism rates comparable to their classmates who were still homeless (35% vs. 36%, respectively), even six years after moving into permanent housing. Likewise, these formerly homeless students continued to perform below grade level in math and English Language Arts—scoring proficient at rates 1.5x to 2x below those of their always housed classmates.

Disrupted learning keeps homeless students from graduating. Barely half of students who experienced homelessness during high school graduated on time (56%). Homeless students who were able to avoid chronic absenteeism or having to transfer schools mid-year, however, had a graduation rate of 90%. But less than a third (29%) of homeless students did not experience these instability factors during their high school years.

Homeless students are at heightened risk for mental health issues. The chronic stress of housing instability can severely impact the mental health of homeless students. Nearly half of homeless high school students (46%) reported struggling with depression, and over a third (35%) reported being bullied. Most alarmingly, high school students experiencing homelessness were 4x as likely to attempt suicide as their housed peers (28% vs. 7%).

The effects of homelessness extend far beyond the lack of permanent housing, and can impact a student's education, physical and emotional well-being, and their ability to overcome the cycle of poverty and housing instability. Understanding the scope of homelessness and the diverse challenges faced by the students experiencing it is fundamental to developing targeted solutions and effectively addressing the needs of homeless students.

The Institute for Children, Poverty, and Homelessness brings this actionable issue into focus through relevant reports, engaging infographics, and interactive data tools. Explore our Student Homelessness in New York City series to learn more about the effects of housing instability in the lives of students who experience it.

MBPO Reported: On What the new federal “Public Charge” rule means for NYC immigrants. The Trump Administration has written a new rule, to be implemented on October 15, 2019, which adds a criteria for the decision to grant legal permanent status to those undocumented immigrants who apply. It does not apply to those who already have a green card, only those who are undocumented and seeking to become legal. It also does not affect eligibility for those on public benefits. In New York City, applications from non-citizens for SNAP benefits dropped at twice the rate of eligible citizens between 2017 and 2018, and at almost four times the rate of citizens between 2018 and 2019. The “Public Charge” rule changes how undocumented immigrant status is handled by the federal government. City government stands with all New Yorkers, documented or not, in these difficult times. To learn more, or get free legal help, call 311 or (800) 354-0365, or visit www.nyc.gov/PublicCharge.

Children with nonmedical exemptions must now be vaccinated to attend or remain in school.

A medical exemption is allowed when a child has a medical condition that prevents them from receiving a vaccine. (See attached)

New Law on School Vaccination Requirements

Removing Nonmedical Exemption

On June 13, 2019, Governor Andrew M. Cuomo signed legislation removing nonmedical exemptions from school vaccination requirements for children to help protect the public from the worst measles outbreak in more than 25 years.

What does the new law do?

The new law no longer allows a religious exemption to the requirement that children be vaccinated against measles and other diseases to attend either:

- public, private or parochial school (for students in pre-kindergarten through 12th grade), or
- day care.

Deadlines for vaccination under the new law

For children who are attending school or day care this summer:

Within 14 days of the first day of school or day care – children must receive the first age-appropriate dose in each immunization series to attend or remain in school or day care.

Within 30 days after the first day of school or day care – parents or guardians of such children must show that they have appointments for all required follow-up doses. The deadlines for follow-up doses depend on the vaccine.

For children entering or attending school or day care in the fall:

Within 14 days of the first day of school or day care – children must receive the first age-appropriate dose in each immunization series to attend or remain in school or day care.

Within 30 days after the first day of school or day care – parents or guardians of such children must show that they have appointments for all required follow-up doses. The deadlines for follow-up doses depend on the vaccine.

Catch-up Immunization Schedule to continue to attend school or day care:

The New York State Department of Health expects children to receive all required doses listed on Table 2 at the following link:
